Jesse E. Heilmuller, leader of the symphony orchestra at Crandall's Metropolitan Theater, has been in New York for the past week, combining business to the extent of replenishing the theater's musical library with a trunkful of late production numbers, with his annual vacation activities. During Mr. Heilmuller's absence the orchestra at the Metropolitan has been under the skillful conductorship of Henri Sokolove.

Harry M. Crandall, owner of the Crandall chain of theaters in Washington, last week placed a large order for gymnasium equipment for the new gym to be fitted up under the Metropolitan Theater for the exclusive use of the members and employees of his organization.

"A Regular Feller," Charles Emerson Cook's production of Mark Swan's new comedy of motoring thrills and consequent love adventures, which registered a decided hit in Asbury Park, Long Branch, and Atlantic City, where the piece has played to large cosmopolitan audiences for the past two weeks, will be seen at the National Theater here the week of August 3, just prior to its Broadway premiere.

"Look Who's Here," a musical play with Cecil Lean and Cleo Mayfield, will open at the National Theater on one week commencing Sunday night.
